My dearest Margaret

It is the night before you leave and I am writing this by candlelight. Tomorrow you will leave Sligo and travel for Queenstown where you will board the 'Titanic', the ship we have heard so much about. You are packing your suitcase as I write. I can hear you and your brother chatting together. He will miss you so much. I am not sure if he fully understands how far away America is because yesterday he asked if we would be going to see you! He has something special for you. I don't know what it is but he wants to give it to you before you leave. He is very thoughtful, as you know.

The meal we all had together this evening was very special. It was a happy occasion and a sad occasion all at once. Of course, your father tried to hide the tears in his eyes. He is sad to see his youngest daughter go but we both understand that greater opportunities await you in America. Haven't your brother and sister done so well out there. We know you will too.

I am delighted that you are travelling with your two best friends Mary and Kate. I know you will all look after each other. Have a wonderful time on board the 'Titanic'. Write to me as soon as you arrive, I want to hear all about your journey.

Love

Mother
